Halítóh!

This collection of Choctaw Stories and Legends celebrates our rich history of using stories to teach moral values, to bring laughter and joy to our people, and to provide an insight to today's Choctaw culture.

(Once upon a time a raccoon and a possum met in the woods. The possum had always admired the raccoon's tail, so the possum asked the raccoon how he made the stripes in his tail.)

Shawi yat iláp áy alhíha illa kásh ḡ halībīs at yohmih ósh mayah bannah á tok osh ḡ holábih tók. “Iti itta hoblit tahli li chá óti lik mā lowat ǫt moshót tahak mā tokchobi lashpa illah ósh ashak mā sa hálībīs mā takchit tahli li chá anoka pit bohli lí tok ósh ik hopákok mā kohchi lih mā yot basówah tók kíyo,” im áchih tók.

(But the raccoon did not want other animals to imitate raccoons so he lied to the possum. The raccoon told the possum, “I gathered together some wood and built a fire. When the fire died down and only hot ashes were left, I wrapped up my tail and put into the hot ashes for a while and pulled it out. And that’s how I got the stripes.”)

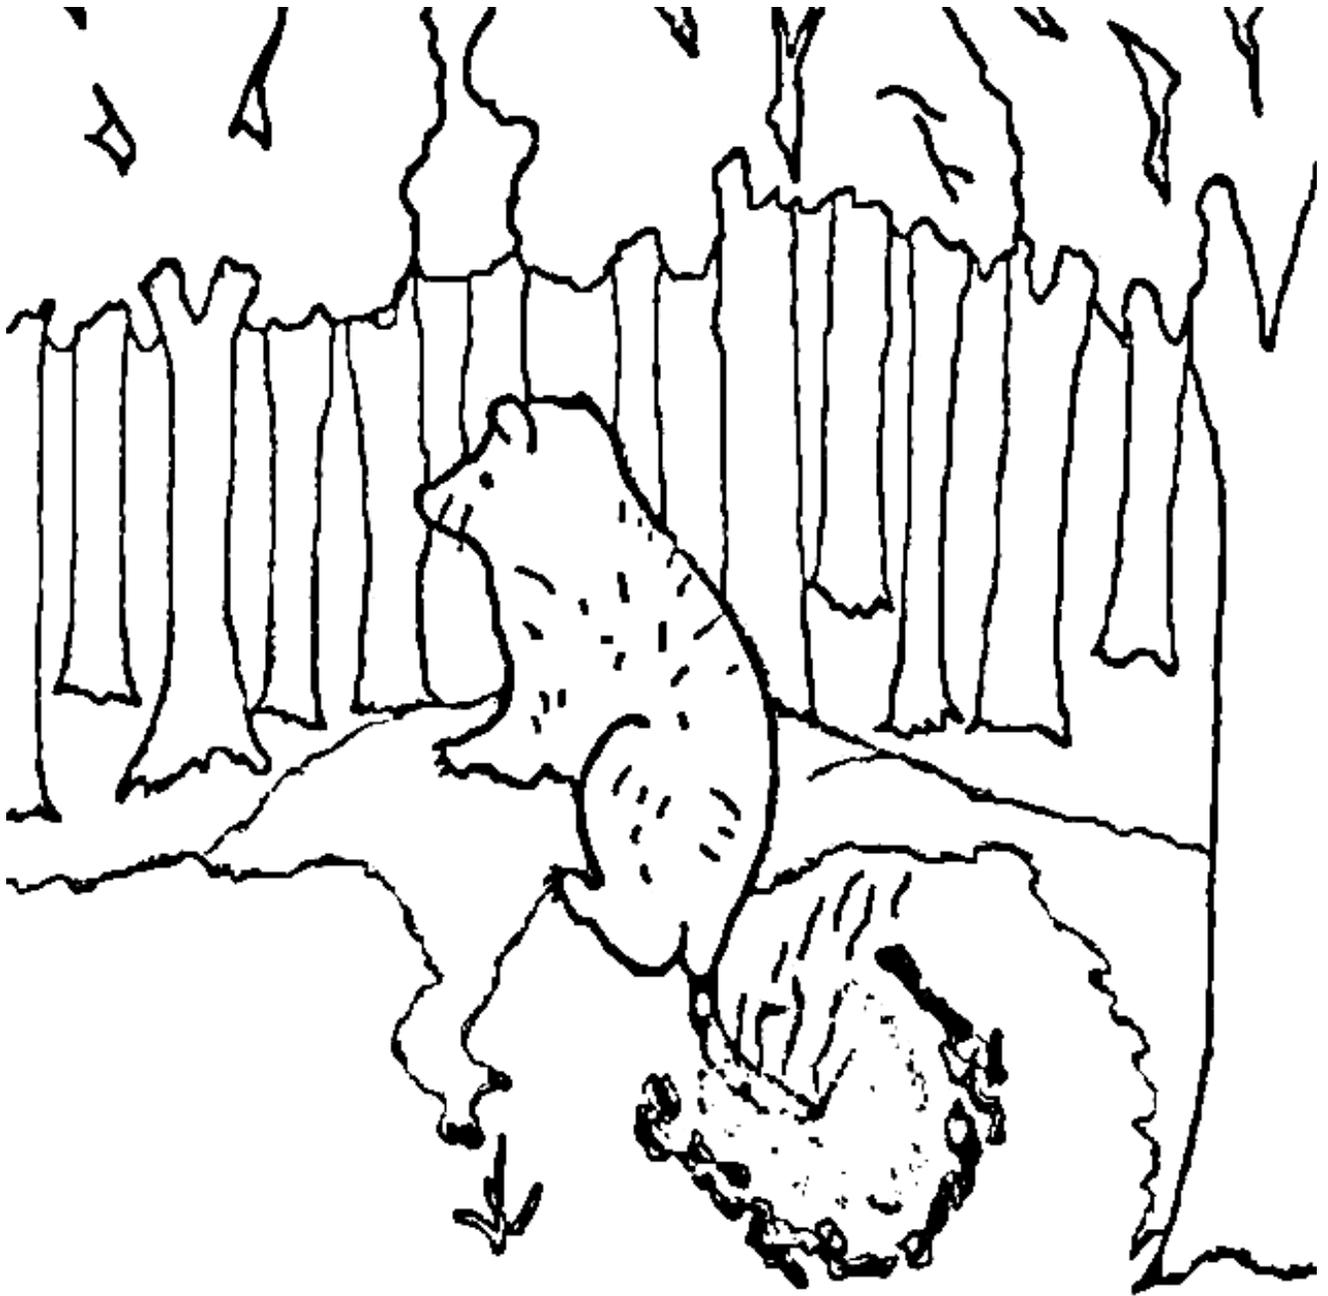

Hihmā shokkata akkiya ĩ halĭbis pisa achokma lih bannah átok

(So the possum, wanting a pretty tail, did not wait around even a moment but went in a hurry to gather wood.)

Nánit iti itta hoblit lawá chit tahlih mat ótih tók.

(The possum gathered wood together and started a fire.)

Lowak at ot moshólit táha ná tokchobi lashpa illah ósh ashah ma ihalibis takchit tahlih mat pit bohlih tók. I halibis at lowa kat hottopah ókak ósh binilih tók.

(When only the hot ashes were left, the possum wrapped up his tail and put it into the ashes. His tail was burning and painful but he didn't move.)

Ahchíbat tahah mā kohchit pisá tok ako ĩ halĭbis at anakshowat táha na hishít ikshohō pisah tók.

(After a length of time, the possum took his tail out and saw the hair was singed.)

Hihmat, hofahya átapah ósh ıchokka ot chokkawah mat lomah tók.

(It embarrassed him so much he went into his house and hid.)

Mak ahtók ásh kani ayana oklah owakak ma hofahyat akka ittóla hicha illi ilá hobih.

Toff.

(That's why when surprised, he falls down on the ground from sheer embarrassment and pretends to be dead.
The End)
